The city's newest casino is open for business in downtown Winnipeg.

While Shark Club actually opened its doors on the second floor of Cityplace over the weekend — just in time for the crowds brought downtown for UFC — the club held a grand opening Tuesday morning for media to take a look around.

"Winnipeg's downtown is undergoing an exceptional renaissance," said True North's president and CEO Jim Ludlow. "We think being here makes a bunch of sense for our expanding asset pool in sports hospitality and entertainment."

The club is owned by True North Sports & Entertainment, but Manitoba Lotteries Corporation runs the gambling operations, and Shark Clubs of Canada takes care of the food and drink end of things, said Ludlow.

The swanky 17,000 square-foot club is licensed for 500 and, as well as 140 slot machines and six blackjack and poker tables, there's a restaurant and bar, a private dining room, and no less than 57 HD TVs.

The club's opening comes as a number of developments are planned in the area, known as the Sports, Hospitality and Entertainment District (SHED), and CentreVenture president and CEO Ross McGowan said the business fits right into the area's new vision.

"Over the next several years, we'll see over $1.2 billion invested in this area of our downtown," he said. "It's businesses such as the Shark Club ... that will create a hub of dining and entertainment options for everyone."

Councillor pitches 'grand central station' at IGF

Investors Group Field.

Coun. Dan Vandal says a bus-only station would ease traffic woes, while Winnipeg Transit seems open to the idea

bernice.pontanilla@metronews.ca

A city councillor is asking Winnipeg Transit to look at the possibility of building a bus-only "grand central station" at Investors Group Field through the now-defunct Southwood golf course by the University of Manitoba.

Coun. Dan Vandal (St. Boniface) put forward a motion during Tuesday's infrastructure renewal and public works committee meeting adding this idea to the "functional design study" already underway for the second phase of rapid transit.

Vandal's motion is in response to the traffic woes that plagued the Winnipeg Blue Bombers game last Wednesday, where vehicles and buses were caught in bottlenecks that caused thousands to arrive late for the game.

"It's become apparent that transit and access to the new stadium is going to be an issue," said Vandal, who added after the meeting that this "grand central station" could be constructed even before the rest of the corridor.

Transit director Dave Wardrop said his department would look into this idea, calling it an inventive way to "provide enhanced service to the stadium."

Meanwhile, the committee also backed a report calling for the addition of the equivalent of six full-time positions to transit's Foot Patrol platoon, at a cost of $233,800 in 2014, and $531,600 in 2015, with a two per cent increase factored in for the subsequent years. However, the provincial government is expected to chip in half of the costs.

Tim Bahry, a bus driver who is also assistant chief union steward for the Amalgamated Transit Union, said most disputes start with people who don't pay full fares, yet still want a transfer.

"Some kind of an effort is better than no effort," he said about the added patrols.

St. Vital Coun. Brian Mayes, who has been actively lobbying for improvements to bus safety for drivers and passengers, said it's a "good first step."

The committee voted to refer the report to the 2014 budget process.

Coun. Dan Vandal believes a "grand central station" at IGF would help ease the kind of congestion fans experienced during the Bombers' pre-season game last week. BERNICE PONTANILLA/METRO

City may replace trash, recycling carts for free

Councillors argue the city should cover the replacement costs for stolen or damaged garbage and recycling carts. BERNICE PONTANILLA/METRO

Making people who've had their garbage and recycling carts stolen or damaged in an accident pay for their replacement is like robbing them again, said Coun. Harvey Smith.

The municipal representative for Daniel McIntyre made this comment during Tuesday's infrastructure renewal and public works committee meeting, where he spoke in support of his motion calling for the city to cover the replacement costs through the money they've already collected from citizens.

"The fact is, we charge them $90 for replacement of the cart and they had no say whatsoever," added Smith.

"It seems to me incredible that someone damages their cart or robs their cart, and then we rob them, a second time."

Coun. Ross Eadie (Mynarski), who seconded Smith's motion, said he's done the math and believes the cost would be 45 cents from the $50 the city collected from property owners for the garbage and recycling program, which is paid annually.

Eadie estimates the total cost would be $85,000.

"Everybody is already paying the $50, why can't we use a small portion of that $50 — 45 cents — and just replace these (carts)," added Eadie after he addressed the councillors on the committee.

The committee referred the motion to the city's administration for a report back.

Zoo getting $5.5M new entrance

The Assiniboine Park Zoo is getting a new entrance in addition to all the new attractions slated to open over the next two years.

Ground was broken today for the new entrance, which will be a 11,410 sq. ft. multi-purpose facility built just east of the current zoo entrance on Roblin Boulevard, said the Assiniboine Park Conservancy in a press release.

"Not only will the new entrance accommodate the growing zoo, it will welcome our visitors."

The new entrance will cost $5.5 million and is part of the conservancy's Imagine a Place campaign.

Prized Métis bell

Bell of Batoche should return to church: Councillor

The prized bell for the Métis community should return to its Saskatchewan church, but if that isn't possible, Winnipeg could provide a good home, said St. Boniface Coun. Dan Vandal.

Vandal made his comments in response to reports of a media event being held by the Union Nationale Métisse Saint-Joseph du Manitoba on Friday, where it is expected information on the bell of Batoche will be made public.

"Certainly they (the church) get first priority to get it back, where it rightfully belongs," said Vandal.

The bell of Batoche, made of silver and weighing 20 pounds, was taken from a church in Batoche, Sask., as a war trophy to Millbrook, Ont., after the North West Rebellion in 1885, which was led by the father of Manitoba, Louis Riel.

It disappeared from a Canadian Legion hall in 1991 and though there have been rumours about its location in the years since, nothing had been confirmed.

Singer with soul. Bet on Bettye LaVette to give a powerful performance

Bettye LaVette doesn't do covers; she does "interpretations."

A seldom-songwriter, the 67-year-old American soul singer puts her own spin on pre-existing songs, her powerhouse voice taking them to new places.

"I'm somebody else so I sound different (than the original artist) and I feel different about the song. I don't fall in love with the artist; I fall in love with the song," said LaVette, who recorded her first single, My Man — He's a Lovin' Man at age 16.

Take her interpretation of The Who's Love, Reign o'er Me.

LaVette performed the song at the 2008 Kennedy Centre Honours to an absolutely amazed Roger Daltrey and Pete Townsend.

"I'm married to an Irish man who grew up listening to The Who but I had never heard the song in my life until a week before," LaVette says. "Anytime I get a chance to make a (man like) Pete Townsend cry and have my husband see it, I love it."

Priest sex trial. Testimony from two brothers to be jointly considered in case

Two brothers who say they were sexually abused by an Orthodox priest in Winnipeg will have their testimony considered jointly.

The decision was made by Court of Queen's Bench Justice Christopher Mainella in the trial of Seraphim Storheim.

Storheim's defence lawyer had argued each brother's testimony should not be used to bolster the other's claim.

The judge ruled each brother's testimony is important in determining whether sexual abuse occurred. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Skeeters take to Winnipeg skies

Get swattin'. The worst of first batch is behind us, but weather to decide how bad it gets

shane.gibson@metronews.ca

The city's insect control branch confirmed Tuesday what most Winnipeggers found out last weekend — mosquito season is upon us.

The good news is city insect expert Taz Stuart figures the numbers of the first emergence of adult mosquitoes that took flight in the last few days has hit its peak.

But how long the first batch stays in the skies and how bad the next generation currently in bodies of water in and around Winnipeg will be depends on the weather.

"The generation that's out right now will probably be around for the next week or two if it still stays hot and dry, but if it gets more humid and (it) cools down they'll live a lot longer," explained Stuart. "But a big key part is we're drying up after two and a half weeks ago ... no water equals no mosquitoes."

Tuesday's citywide New Jersey Light Trap mosquito count was 15, giving the city the go-ahead to start residual treatments with permethrin, an environmentally-friendly product made from chrysanthemum flowers.

Fogging, another method of eliminating mosquitoes, won't happen in the city unless average trap counts hit 25 for two straight days with at least one quadrant averaging 100 or more of the bloodsuckers.

If fogging is required at all this year, the city will test a new biological fog called Pyrocid, which is made from flowers and may replace Malathion in the future if it shows results.

Debate on Syria went better than expected, Harper says

Summit. But the final G8 statement remains non-committal on Assad, use of chemical weapons

The Group of Eight stopped short of calling for the ouster of Syrian President Bashar Assad in its final statement on Tuesday but did call for a swift end to the bloody civil war and urgent peace talks.

Despite a lack of consensus among the G8, Prime Minister Stephen Harper said the outcome was better than expected.

Harper also spoke about Russian President Vladimir Putin in more positive terms than he has at any other point during his week-long trip to Europe, when he accused Putin of siding with "thugs."

Tensions have escalated over the past week since the U.S. announced it would supply weapons to the Syrian opposition after it found proof the Assad regime attacked its foes with chemical weapons.

Russia — the only member of the G8 that supports the Assad government — has been highly critical of the move. The Russians also assert that the claims about chemical weapons are based on flimsy evidence.

The rest of the G8 is split

Consensus

While the G8 is split over Syria, there were agreements in other areas.

over whether the U.S. should arm the rebels, but generally agrees that Assad must go.

The final G8 statement on Syria sought the middle ground. It condemned any use of chemical weapons without admitting any attacks actually happened. It also called for some sort of transitional government, without explicitly calling for Assad's ouster.

Spies and allies

Canada may have helped spy on G20

Leaked documents suggest Canada helped the U.S. and Britain spy on the London G20 summit four years ago.

Britain's Guardian newspaper says spies monitored the computers and intercepted the phone calls of foreign politicians and officials at two G20 meetings in London in 2009.

The Guardian published PowerPoint slides describing the operation, including one featuring the emblem of the Communications Security Establishment, Canada's electronic eavesdropping agency.

It appears alongside the logos of key allies — the U.S. National Security Agency and Britain's Government Communications Headquarters — as well as an icon labelled Joint Apps.

The documents were leaked by former NSA contractor Edward Snowden, who has touched off a vigorous global discussion about state surveillance.

Senate cancels pep talk on scandal

Outrage

"It's a comedy of errors what's going on here in the lack of consultation. We're talking taxpayers' money and this wouldn't come cheap."

Liberal Sen. Jim Munson, a member of the internal economy committee cording to an invitation that went out Tuesday morning.

But after a story by The Canadian Press publicized the event, a number of prominent senators blew a gasket.

Marjory LeBreton, government leader in the Senate, said the idea was discussed in principle at a meeting of the internal economy committee's steering committee. But it was never approved by members of the committee.

"I was shocked when I saw that (email)," LeBreton said outside the Senate chamber.

Asked if she thinks hiring speakers is a waste of money, LeBreton responded: "At this point in time, I certainly do."

It was not immediately clear how much the Senate contracted to pay for the speakers.

The talks had been scheduled for Wednesday afternoon — when the Senate is supposed to be sitting.

Another Montreal mayor bids adieu amid scandal

Resignation. Vote at city council next week expected to decide replacement until November election

Montreal has had its second scandal-provoked mayoral resignation in less than a year, with an arrest and criminal charges leading to the departure on Tuesday of its interim city-hall boss.

Replacement mayor Michael Applebaum stepped down a day after he was slapped with 14 criminal charges.

He made the announcement in a two-minute statement at city hall. He did not take questions. Applebaum said he's innocent of the charges against him and will work to prove his innocence.

"I will do everything I can to prove the accusations against me are unfounded," Applebaum said.

He said he hoped someday to regain Montrealers' trust. He conceded that, in the meantime, it would have been implausible to try to continue as mayor.

In making that direct appeal to residents, Applebaum committed a quintessentially Montreal linguistic flub, mixing English and French terms with unintended consequences.

"I would like to tell Montrealers that I love them," he began. "I understand their frustration, their deception and their cynicism with the political climate of the last few years."

The word "deception" has an entirely different meaning in French. In the local French patois, however, even native English-speakers such as Applebaum will sometimes use the term incorrectly when they actually mean to say "disappointment."

The mistake was not without irony.

Applebaum spent much of his statement combating the notion that he had deceived Montrealers. Seven months after he took office on a promise to fight corruption, Applebaum insisted he had never participated in illegal schemes and said he had achieved successes in cleaning up city hall.

The charges against him stemmed from alleged acts that occurred from 2006 to 2011, before he became mayor. While police offered few details, they said the charges related to real-estate projects in the west-end borough Applebaum led.

Police said they believe bribes were paid to influence zoning and permit decisions.

Knox acquittal neglected evidence, high court says

Italy's high court on Tuesday harshly faulted the appeals court that acquitted American student Amanda Knox of murdering her roommate, saying its ruling was full of "deficiencies, contradictions and illogical" conclusions. It ordered a new appeals court to consider all the evidence to determine whether Knox helped kill the young woman.

In March, the Court of Cassation overturned Knox's acquittal in the 2007 murder of British roommate Meredith Kercher, 21, and ordered a new trial. On Tuesday, the high court issued its written reasoning for doing so.

The 74-page document picked apart the 2011 appeals-court decision that freed Knox, faulting the judges for ignoring some evidence, considering other evidence insufficiently and undervaluing the fact that Knox had initially accused a man of committing the crime who had nothing to do with it.

At one point, the high court

said the appeals sentence "openly collides with objective facts of the case."

Among the undervalued pieces of evidence was Knox's own statement to police, written in English after her police interrogation, in which she wrote that while she couldn't remember clearly, she had an image of herself in her apartment kitchen with her hands covering her ears to drown out Kercher's screams.

Kercher's body was found in November 2007 in her bedroom of the house she shared with Knox in Perugia, a central Italian town popular with foreign exchange students. Her throat had been slashed.

Knox, now 25, and her Italian ex-boyfriend, Raffaele Sollecito, 29, were initially convicted of the crime. A Perugia appeals court acquitted them in 2011, criticizing virtually the entire case mounted by prosecutors. The appellate court noted that the murder weapon was never found, DNA tests were faulty and prosecutors provided no murder motive.

Both Knox and Sollecito denied any involvement, saying they weren't in the apartment at the time. But they acknowledged they had smoked marijuana and their memories were clouded.

A young man from Ivory Coast, Rudy Guede, was convicted of the slaying in a separate proceeding and is serving a 16-year sentence.

In the Cassation ruling, the high-court judges sharply criticized the appeals-court ruling for not taking into account the sentence against Guede, which said he hadn't acted alone.

They said the new appeal process would serve to "not only demonstrate the presence of the two suspects in the place of the crime, but to possibly outline the subjective position of Guede's accomplices." They said hypotheses ran from a simple case of forced sex involving Kercher "to a group erotic game that blew up and went out of control."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Uncertainty ahead

- Knox left Italy a free woman after her 2011 acquittal, having served nearly four years of a 26-year prison sentence. Now a University of Washington student in Seattle, she has called the reversal by the Cassation court "painful" but said she was confident she would be exonerated in the new appeals.
- Italian law cannot compel Knox to return for the new trial and her lawyers have said she has no plans to do so. It is unclear what would happen to Knox if a possible conviction from the new trial is upheld on final appeal.
- No date for the new trial has been set.

Year in hiding: Assange's life in a single room

Stalemate. Britain has spent nearly $5M in policing costs, and it still won't grant WikiLeaks boss a safe passage out

KIERON MONKS
Metro World News in London

Inside the gold-framed double doors, the Ecuadorian Embassy of London is a modest apartment with white-painted walls and simple furniture. Not the most fitting residence for a world famous hero, or villain.

But since June 19, 2012, WikiLeaks boss Julian Assange has gone from pioneer to captive, forced into hiding to avoid extradition to Sweden where possible charges on sexual assault await him. The Australian will be arrested if he steps outside the building, so the jet-set lifestyle has been replaced by a single room and his laptop.

DVD box sets of The Twilight Zone and The West Wing keep him company, and an ultraviolet lamp replaces daylight. Assange lives nocturnally according to reports, working until dawn, supported by heavy doses of caffeine.

The 41-year-old has not been forgotten, judging from the crowds outside his window shouting "freedom fighter," and the fact that his generous hosts that have granted him asylum and allowed him to camp their workplace. Further, celebrity guests from Lady Gaga to Oliver Stone

Yet despite the situation attracting ridicule, it could last "another five years" according to Ecuador's foreign minister Ricardo Patiño, with no diplomatic solution in sight.

Plenty more miles on the treadmill await the lord of leaks.

Turkey. 'Standing man' inspires protesters to replicate silent defiance

After weeks of sometimes violent confrontation with police, protesters in Turkey have found what could be a more potent form of resistance: Standing still.

The trend was launched by performance artist Erdem Gunduz, who stood silently for hours in Istanbul's central Taksim Square on Monday night, in passive defiance of Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan's violent crackdown on environmental protesters.

Gunduz made no announcement before he paused Monday evening in the square and didn't move. He stood with his hands in his pockets, staring at an image of Turkey's founding father Mustafa Kemal Atatürk, whose admiration is rooted in his success in imposing secular values on a largely Muslim nation 90 years ago.

When police arrived an hour later, they searched his pockets and his backpack, then left.

Witnesses began calling him "duran adam" — "standing man." Some joined him in Taksim, while others began doing the same in other Turkish cities. In Ankara, the capital, a woman stood still at the spot

Erdem Gunduz's act, amplified by social media, had a remarkably swift effect on the protests in Turkey.

- Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan appeared to be seizing the initiative after the government capitalized on sporadic violence to crack down on protests.

Angkor Wat complex

Ancient city found in Cambodia

Airborne laser technology has uncovered a network of roadways and canals, illustrating a bustling ancient city linking Cambodia's famed Angkor Wat temple complex.

The discovery was announced late Monday in a peer-reviewed paper released early by the journal Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences. The laser scanning revealed a previously undocumented, formally planned urban landscape integrating the 1,200-year-old temples.

The Angkor temple complex, Cambodia's top tourist destination, was constructed in the 12th century during the mighty Khmer empire. Angkor Wat is a point of deep pride for Cambodians, appearing on the national flag.

Nazi war crimes

Hungary charges ex-Canadian citizen

Hungarian prosecutors on Tuesday charged a 98-year-old former police officer, who was stripped of his Canadian citizenship, with torturing Jews and assisting in their deportation to Nazi death camps.

Laszlo Csatory, who lived for years in Montreal, was chief of an internment camp for 12,000 Jews at a brick factory in Kosice — a Slovak city then part of Hungary — in May 1944, they said. He is accused of beating and whipping his victims, and of refusing to allow ventilation holes to be cut into the walls of a railcar crammed with 80 Jews being deported.

Csatory was initially convicted in absentia for war crimes in Slovakia in 1948 and sentenced to death. He arrived in Halifax the following year, became a Canadian citizen in 1955.

In 1997, Csatory quietly left Canada as authorities prepared to serve him notice of a deportation.

Same-sex unions

Russia on brink of ban on adoptions

Russia is on its way to sharply limiting the adoption of children by people from countries that allow same-sex marriage.

Under a measure that passed its second reading in the lower house of parliament Tuesday, Russia will prohibit adoption by foreign couples whose homeland recognizes their same-sex union as marriage, as well as by single people or unmarried couples from those countries.

The lower house voted for the bill unanimously. After a third and final reading that is largely a formality, it must still be passed by the upper house, which is little more than a rubber-stamp body. Then it would go for signing to President Vladimir Putin, who has already expressed support for the ban.

The measure is the latest move by Russia to buck the Western trend toward greater acceptance of homosexuality.

U.S. court upholds vibrator patent

The U.S. International Trade Commission has upheld a Canadian company's patent for its couples vibrator, banning the import, sale and marketing of all infringing products in the U.S.

But the battle isn't over for Standard Innovation Corp., maker of the We-Vibe. The company is still before the Canadian Federal Court for patent infringement.

Standard Innovation launched the We-Vibe, a vibrator that couples wear during sex, in 2008. In 2011, Lelo Inc. unveiled a similar product called the Tiani, prompting Standard to go to court. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Research. Team develops 'sharp-shooter' drug aimed at several cancers

A team of Canadian and U.S. researchers has developed a new "sharp-shooter" drug they hope may be a breakthrough in treating several types of aggressive cancer.

The drug, known for now as CFI-400945, is a new class of cancer agent that targets an enzyme involved in some malignancies, among them some types of breast cancer and ovarian, colorectal, pancreatic and prostate cancers.

In tests on specially bred lab mice with human breast and ovarian cancers, CFI-400945 "responded spectacularly," significantly shrinking the tumours, said co-principal investigator Dr. Tak Mak of Princess Margaret Cancer Centre.

But the world-renowned researcher cautioned these results occurred in mice — and human cancers can be far more complex.

"To find a cure is our shared dream; our nightmare is that it is not yet within our reach," Mak told a packed news conference at the Toronto hospital

Health. Starbucks posts calorie counts at its U.S. stores ahead of new law

Starbucks has a new way to wake up its customers: showing the calories in its drinks.

The Seattle-based coffee chain says it will start posting calorie counts on menu boards across the U.S. next week, ahead of a federal regulation that would require it to do so.

Calorie counts on menus are already required in some parts of the country, including New York City.

But starting June 25, Starbucks Corp. says customers at its more than 11,000 U.S. locations will be able to see that there are 300 calories in a small caramel Frappuccino and 230 calories in a small Procced Caffé Mocha.

Pastry cases will also show calorie information. Starbucks Canada is not following suit at this time.

The move comes as the Food and Drug Administration irons out the details of a regulation that would require companies with more than 20 locations to post calorie information on their menus.

Other chains including McDonald's Corp. have also moved ahead with posting the information, saying they're providing it to be more transparent rather than because they're being forced to.

While a few national chains already put calorie information on their menus, a "large majority" are waiting for the FDA to issue its final guidelines, according to a spokeswoman for the National Restaurant Association. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

EU slams Canada for holding up free-trade talks

Northern Ireland.

Pressure mounts as U.S. starts negotiations for own deal with EU

Canada has publicly been called on the carpet by the European Union for holding up free-trade talks. EU trade spokesman John Clancy took the unusual step Tuesday of criticizing Canada as the G8 summit in Northern Ireland came to a close.

"We are very close to an agreement," Clancy said in a statement. "The EU has shown pragmatism and flexibility and is ready to take the last steps to achieve a political breakthrough in the negotiations."

"We have been awaiting a similar message from Canada

What's the beef?

- Among the issues believed to be stalling the talks is duty-free access to European markets for Canadian beef.
- Ireland and France, two major beef producers, are believed to have concerns about the amount of Canadian beef allowed into Europe. Canada is said to have balked at the export limit proposed by the Europeans.

HERE'S A TIP: DON'T EXPECT ONE?

OK, I have a cat here. And I'm going to place it gently among the pigeons, then back away:

Should tipping be banned?

A popular high-end New York restaurant called Sushi Yasuda thinks so, and has done exactly that. Servers are forced to live on their salaries. They also get, like, benefits.

The restaurant's owner says the tipping ban ends the bile-inducing requirement to calculate the tip at the end of the meal, recapturing the serenity of fine Japanese dining.

Just so, grasshopper.

This isn't a trend exactly, but there's also a bit of an outbreak in Chicago where in some restaurants, you pay for the meal before you even begin. Careful not to choke on the appetizer.

JUST SAYIN'
Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

Right now, there are overworked and underpaid servers everywhere going WTF? This subject is not even open to negotiation.

Then, just as likely, there are customers who are wondering when the practice of tipping became an obligation under the Geneva Convention, or wherever they issue those must-be-obeyed decrees.

There's even less room to weasel out of tipping these days. Now, the server hovers (anxious, vigilant) over your shoulder as you pay the bill on that portable Wi-Fi Visa machine with its handy tip percentage buttons. I don't know about you, but unless the waiter flambés my dinner companion, I dutifully press the 20 per cent button.

And if he/she does toast my guest, I only leave 15 per cent. You have to take a stand somewhere.

Back in the old days, if you were abandoned altogether somewhere between courses, you could slide a penny under your dish and make your getaway, smug in the knowledge that you failed to put some kid through drama school. But there's no penny button on that infernal machine.

At the New York sushi restaurant, people were so brain-washed that they tried to write in a tip on the bill, even though there was no place to accommodate one. They just didn't get it, until the owners started red-circling the explanation about the tipping ban. Then they got it, and unless they were married to the server, they liked it.

I don't know about a ban, but it might not be a bad idea to restore the idea of the tip as an expression of appreciation for good service. Don't ban tipping; ban the obligation to tip.

Of course, now I've done it. I'll have to eat at home until the heat dies down. Maybe, just to be safe, I'll hire a food taster. Problem is, I'll have to leave a generous tip. Nobody wants an unhappy food taster.

This fortunate sea lion escaped the jaws of death by a few centimetres after a pod of killer whales (orca) risked beaching themselves while in pursuit of their prey.

Q and A

Near-death life lesson

PABLO CERSOSIMO
Professional photographer and safari guide, 44, from Buenos Aires, Argentina

It looks like this sea lion is doomed... This seal survived but others were not so fortunate. But in truth, pups need a couple of these bad experiences to learn that orcas are predators and that they will be part of their menu. When pups are one month old, they start venturing out into the water and at that stage they don't know what an orca is. They don't associate these whales with danger and often stay in the water when the predators show up. It's a life lesson for the pup.

In these hunter-versus-the-hunted scenarios, do you sympathize with one critter over another? No, I sympathize with both. The orca is one of my favourite animals — it's smart, intelligent and with many respects similar to humans. And I admire the sea lions for their ability to survive against this magnificent predator.

Brainless entertainment has zombies taking over the world

World War Z.

Filmmakers continue to capitalize by making corpses cool for the next generation of little guys and ghouls, who, in turn, eat it up

IN FOCUS
Richard Crouse
scene@metronews.ca

Zombies are the most recent and most unlikely pop culture heroes.

On TV, the recent Walking Dead finale drew almost 13 million viewers.

At the movies the zom com Warm Bodies made still hearts beat again and outdoor recreation retailer REI even bandwagon jumped with their 13 Essential Tools for Surviving a Zombie Outbreak campaign.

This weekend Brad Pitt battles the undead in World War Z, an action thriller set against the backdrop of a worldwide zombie apocalypse.

The movie has the highest ratio of zombies to humans of any film this year, but don't ask its star why these cannibalistic cadavers are so trendy.

"As for why zombies are so popular," said Pitt, "I really have no idea."

Brad Pitt stars in World War Z but has no idea what makes zombies so appealing to a new movie-going generation.

HANDOUT

Pitt may not be able to out his finger on it, but academics suggest a variety of reasons. Audiences are interested in zombies in times of crisis, when we feel disempowered, says one, while another writer proposes that they offer something more primal — that the zombies represent an example of control over death.

Whatever the reason, filmmakers have been capitalizing on these cool corpses for years. Some, like Night of the Living Dead and Shaun of the Dead are classics, others, like the stranger-than-usual Zombie Honeymoon, aren't.

The grand-ghoul of all weird zombie movies is 1968's Astro Zombies. Starring horror legend John Carradine and cult star Tura Satana, the story of super-human monsters on a killing spree has inspired two sequels and a song of the same name by the Misfits.

Zombie confusion

"As for why zombies are so popular, I really have no idea."

Brad Pitt
Star of World War Z.

The mockumentary American Zombie's tag line is, "We're Here. We're Dead. Get Used to It!"

Documenting the everyday "lives" of a community of zombies in California, it's a fake undead propaganda film that echoes the struggles of many minorities who have had to fight for human rights.

Fido, a Canadian film starring Billy Connolly and Carrie-Anne Moss, is set in a world where humans won the zombie war and, as victors, have made the undead their domestic servants. Funny rather than scary, this one is worth a look to see the usually motor mouthed Connolly in a fun, shambling and wordless performance.

Strangest of all the non-mainstream zombie movies? Poultrygeist: Night of the Chicken Dead, a movie musical about a fast food chain called American Chicken Bunker whose meals turn diners into chicken zombies. Gross, gory and gratuitous, badmovienight.com called it "one of the sickest, most depraved movies I've ever seen."

Yeezus is a dark, drastic departure for Kanye

What did the music reviewers make of Yeezus, the latest from Kanye West? "There's purpose in repulsion..."

Billboard

Yeezus is a medley of several genres — new wave, punk, rock, and of course hip-hop. Those looking for vintage soul sounds or even full-on raps from start to finish will be thrown several curves here. It's an album with numerous emotional layers as well. There are a few lighthearted moments, and cuts about love along with lust. But mostly, West is just plain mad — angry at naysayers.

Ryan Dombal, Pitchfork

For Kanye, there's purpose in repulsion. And on Yeezus, he trades out smooth soul and anthemic choruses for jarring electro, acid house, and industrial grind while delivering some of his most lewd and heart-crushing tales yet. This is willful provocation that Ice Cube, Madonna, and Trent Reznor could all be proud of.

Ray Rahman, Entertainment Weekly

As for the lyrics? Some of the best examples are unprintable here, but even the most bombastic moments ... underscore a man struggling to come to terms with his place in the world, in his own 'Ye way: On I Am A Godhe raps, "I am a god/Even though I'm a man of God/My whole life in the hands of God."

Evan Rytlewski, AV Club

Delivered entirely from the gut, it's West's loudest and most impulsive album, especially in its system-shocking opening stretch of gnarled electro and pounding industrial rap. Even by the standards of an artist who reinvents himself with each release, it's a drastic departure.

Wearing Paris Hilton's stilettos is hard work

The Bling Ring. Young actor Israel Broussard talks about taking on a role that's based on a real person and keeping a level head in Hollywood

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

You think acting is hard? You should try it in pink stilettos. At least that's a lesson 19-year-old Israel Broussard learned with Sofia Coppola's the Bling Ring as Marc, the sole male member of a group of teens who burglarize a slew of celebrities partly out of greed and partly out of admiration. The story is true — Broussard's Marc is based on Nick Prugo — but Coppola chose to change the names so as to not reward the fame-hungry.

How much did you concern yourself with Nick Prugo

and the actual events?

I didn't really reach out to meet him nor do I think I will. If we ever bump into each other some time it might be a little bit weird — I mean, to me at least it will be weird, I don't know about them. I really didn't have much interest in meeting Nick Prugo, and I'd say the most I know about him is the video where he's booty-shaking on TMZ, which is the one I re-did, so if we were to meet each other we'd have to probably fist-bump over that. That's just like, we're bros now, you know? I don't know much about the girls. The girls I paid no attention to, besides Pretty Wild (Alexis Neiers). I'll recognize her. She is one whole chandler. Sofia said she didn't want to make the people we portrayed in this movie more famous, which of course that's unavoidable. They are going to get at least a little more famous. But that's why she changed the names.

This film must give you

The Bling Ring opens on Friday. HANDOUT

a unique perspective on keeping a level head in Hollywood.

Well, my mom and stepdad were very strict. I come from a really good upbringing, so I've got a level head. You know, of course I'm a teenager, I'll do something stupid every now and then. But for the most part they made sure I wasn't going to jump off the deep end.

It's nice to see a gay teen character where it's just a part of his personality instead of being his personality.

I'm glad you see it that way because that's how we wanted it to be seen. First of all, I'm very open-minded and I have no problem with anything. I don't have any judgment toward anybody, but where I come

Real or not?

The Bling Ring is based on the true events of a gang of L.A. teens ripping off celebrities. So how does Hollywood stack up to reality?

- In the film. Harry Potter star Emma Watson plays attention-seeking Nicky, whose self-satisfied speeches outside the courthouse are a highlight of the film. But the real leads are the Bling Ring-leaders played by Israel Broussard and Katie Chang, portraying characters based on Nick Prugo and Rachel Lee.

- In real life. There is no Nicky. Watson's character is based on Alexis Neiers, who had an E! reality series called Pretty Wild that chronicled her arrest and jail time.

- In the film. Broussard and Chang find a key under Paris Hilton's mat on their first visit, granting them access to the reality TV star's home.

- In real life. They did in fact find a key under the mat. Prugo claims he and Lee targeted Hilton because they thought she was "dumb." Hilton appears in the film as herself and allowed Coppola to film in her house.

from that's still judged. So when I was reading the (script) they gave me, I was like, "Mom, I think this dude's gay." She was like, "No he's not," and I was like, "No, he is," (laughs). And I was kind of worried about going back home, are people going to make fun of me for this? What it broke down to was I wore pink heels in Paris Hilton's closet. I can live with that. I find that now that I've done it, it's like why was I even worried about it? It's a role. It was fun.

With the busy summer holiday season upon us, Canadians know that travel delays and long airport layovers can be part of the package. So how do you make the most of that time?

Spend as little time as possible in a line. Check in before arriving at the airport and avoid baggage drop-off lines by bringing only a carry-on piece of luggage. Properly prepare for your security screening. Wear shoes that easily slip off and on, know which sharp objects will literally "not fly" and don't bring liquids more than 100 ml in size.

There's few ingredients to this Steamed Clams and Mussels with Garlic dish, and you can serve little bowls of it with a bit of the juices ladled over top, along with thick slices of bread to sop up the juice.

1. In a large, deep pan, melt the butter over medium low heat and sauté the shallot and chili until softened. Add the garlic and continue to stir, cooking, until fragrant; about 2 minutes. Don't let the garlic brown.

2. Add the wine and bring to a boil, stirring up any bits off the bottom.

3. Turn the heat down to medium low so that the mixture is simmering, then pour in the clams and mussels. Cover the pan with a lid and let them steam for about 5-7 minutes, stirring and checking every now and then. You'll know that they are cooked when the shells have opened.

4. Discard any unopened shells (there's always a few), and don't worry about the ones that are opened only a bit. You can still eat those. Sprinkle the parsley and pepper over top and serve. Divide the mixture among four bowls, ladling the juices over top for people to soak up with bread. Serve with the lemon wedges alongside.

When heading off into the "real-world" as a new grad, you may find it difficult to get everything you want done.

One task that often gets pushed aside is hitting the gym on a regular basis. For most, working out directly before or after work isn't appealing. Who truly wants to wake up an hour early or get home an hour late? Not me.

So, if you're having trouble fitting your workouts before and after work, when can you? At lunch! For most full-time employees, you'll have an hour-long lunch, which gives you just enough time to get a quick work-out in.

Not sure if it's doable? Read on to learn why it completely is and how to do it!

Get everything in order

"I'd like a half hour workout with a side of shower time and spinach salad please!" — sounds like a little much right? It is possible though with a bit of organization. To do so, pack your work clothes, gym gear and home-made lunch with you

Your thoughts?

@TalentEgg: #QuestionoftheDay: Do you have a desk job? How do you stay active when you're sitting all day at work?

• @Joanne4RBC: A short walk after lunch. Take a break from the computer to rest your eyes. Enjoy some friendly chats with co-workers. Stretch!

• @Ellie_Khayatian: stepping away for a quick lunch break, giving your eyes a break. Also, making sure to squeeze in gym time as often as possible!

• @saraherodrigues: Lunchtime walks around the building, taking the stairs, plus actually going to people's desks instead of calling/emailing.

• @CarrieOswald1: Must look so weird dancing around in my office but I need to move & burn energy. Don't know how anyone could sit still for 8 hrs.

before hand. For example; if you're going to the gym three times a week on your lunch break, plan three different workouts for you to rotate through each day you go (on your phone, cue cards, etc). This will allow you to make the most of your gym time by having a game plan all while knowing that you're getting everything in that you need to.

Stay energized

When working out on your lunch break, it's crucial to hydrate and get the proper nutrients. Firstly, working out on an empty stomach isn't healthy. Secondly, you don't want work to be affected. Have a small snack (like yogurt, veggies and hummus, apple slices, etc.) before your workout and eat your lunch after your workout to keep you on your A-game.

Come in a little earlier, leave a little later

When first getting into your lunchtime workout routine, you might take a few extra minutes longer than expected. To ensure that your work isn't being affected, come in a bit early and don't hesitate to stay a bite later than normal. Once you start to get your routine down pat, you should be able to balance everything well.

all in one bag so it's ready to go. This will make it easy for you to go from one thing to the next smoothly.

Intensity, intensity, intensity

Sometimes less is more! It's completely possible to have a short, intense workout if you plan your workouts

You don't always lose when you snooze.

Five tips for getting enough sleep as a new graduate

GREAVES
TalentEgg.ca

There are many changes that come along with transitioning from the student world to the work world. One of the biggest changes that new grads face is in their schedule.

Getting enough sleep is important for everyone, but especially important for new grads as the change in routine tends to be a big one. Gone are the days where you could grab a couple extra minutes (or hours in some cases...) of sleep as you needed.

The side effects of sleep deprivation are scary, so we have the tips you need to make getting enough sleep simple.

Create a routine

The first step in ensuring

Wind down

Sadly, our minds don't shut off the second we put our head on the pillow.

- Our bodies take time to relax enough to fall asleep.
- Winding down before you go to bed can be anything that relaxes you; reading a book, organizing your things for the next day, going for a walk, stretching, talking with your roommate.
- Whatever makes you feel less anxious — do it. This will help you be ready for a good night's sleep.

that you get enough sleep is setting a routine — and sticking to it. To do this, determine what time you have to wake up and count seven to nine hours back from there — that's your bedtime. For example, if you need to wake up at 6:30 a.m., you'll need to go to bed between 9:30 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. depending on how much rest your body needs.

In the jungle, the concrete jungle, the worker sleeps tonight. ISTOCK

Turn off electronics

Set a curfew for your electronics. Researchers have found that there might be a correlation between using electronics before bed and sleep quality. In order to fall asleep, our body needs time to wind down and it can't do that right after looking at the bright lights of a television, computer or smartphone. To make sure that your sleep isn't being hampered by your electronics, try to stay away from using them an hour or two before you hit the pillow.

Stay away from sugar and caffeine

There's nothing like a sweet treat or warm drink before bed, but try to stay away from anything with high sugar or caffeine levels as they can keep you awake for hours after you drink them.

Say no

You might not be on the same schedule as your friends and family, but you don't need to be sleep deprived because of it. If your friends' plans are tiring and affecting your work ethic, don't be afraid to pass every once in a while. This doesn't mean that you should become a hermit, but be aware of when you need to put your sleep first and socializing second.

COMFORTS OF HOME DURING TRYING TIMES

The last thing any parent of a sick child should worry about is where they lay their head at the end of an exhausting day at the hospital.

The goal of Ronald McDonald House Manitoba is to keep families together while their seriously ill or injured child receives care at the Children's Hospital. With all of the comforts of a real home, including a fully functional kitchen, 14 bedrooms and four bathrooms, as well as laundry facilities and a children's play area within the house, families who stay at Ronald McDonald House are able to live comfortably during a stressful situation for just $10 a day.

"The most important thing for these families is that their child gets better and receives the care that he or she needs," says Allison Kesler, executive director at Ronald McDonald House Manitoba. "Families going through this type of trauma need support and they need to be together during trying times."

The organization, which has been open in Manitoba since 1984, helps more than 600 families annually.

"Our operation is run on charitable donations and volunteer support," Kesler says.

GOLF FORE THE CURE

With your help, we can create a world where no families fear breast cancer.

All too often we have friends and family members who receive the news "you have breast cancer." Your heart sinks and you strive to make sense of the unknown.

Tracy Kibsey, director of golf at Southside Golf Course, is just that person. Nine years ago, Kibsey was diagnosed with Stage 3 breast cancer. Today, she is loving and living life.

Because of Kibsey and many others who fight the battle, Southside Ladies Open Golf Tournament has partnered with Golf Fore the Cure because every round and every dollar raised can make a difference.

On July 8, you will find more than 108 women golfers and 14 men volunteers wearing pink, along with dedicated Southside Golf Course staff working to raise a targeted $25,000 for Canadian Cancer Society in support of breast cancer research in Manitoba. Breast cancer death rates have declined steadily since 1986 due to improved screening programs and treatments. These advances

MANITOBA DRAGON BOAT FESTIVAL

Last year, the Children's Hospital Foundation and CancerCare Manitoba Foundation teamed up to raise more than $380,000 for Manitoba kids with cancer through the Manitoba Dragon Boat Festival.

The money goes to help some of Manitoba's youngest and bravest cancer patients through clinical trials and direct patient care.

"Because of clinical research trials being done here at CancerCare, Manitoba attracts some of the best doctors in the world," says Tania Gauthier, community development co-ordinator for the Children's Hospital Foundation. "The doctors who are doing the research are also the doctors who are treating patients."

Making life normal and fun for the patients of the Children's Hospital is paramount. Thanks to the generosity of donors, the Children's Hospital Foundation is able to offer special programs like music and humour therapy. The hospital also boasts a play room and an in-house television studio, as well as specially trained therapeutic clowns who know how to engage with the children and bring humour to their situation.

"These kids are always so brave," Gauthier says. "It's heartwarming and heartbreaking at the same time."

DASCH PROJECT: HOME

They say home is where the heart is, and DASCH couldn't agree more.

The non-profit charity was developed almost 40 years ago and has made its mission to provide people with an intellectual disability a comfortable home in the community, rather than an institutional setting.

The DASCH Foundation calls its mission Project: Home.

"All people deserve a home," says Susanne Williams, director of development for the DASCH Foundation. "Shamefully, we are one of the few remaining provinces that still institutionalize people with intellectual disabilities."

There are more than 300 citizens with intellectual disabilities living within the two remaining Manitoban institutions. Many of these people are waiting for their opportunity for a home in the community — often this is a long wait.

"By the time we get this issue resolved many of these people will have passed away ... never having a real home," Williams says.

DASCH has set out on a mission to raise $2.5 million over the next two years to purchase and renovate six new homes.

Being one of Manitoba Marathon's "26 4 26" charity partners and hosting the annual recognition awards luncheon (this year's honoree is Fred Penner), DASCH can utilize the mass participation in these events to raise the much needed funds for Project: Home and help change and enrich the lives of Manitobans living with intellectual disabilities.

"For some people, after they've moved into their new home, their whole life turns around," Williams says. "It's like they are introduced to a whole new world, a world they didn't know existed."

No offence, but Hawks still in the title hunt

Stanley Cup final.

Chicago trails Boston 2-1 in the series with unproductive power play a big concern

There is no panic or frustration. But Chicago Blackhawks coach Joel Quenneville acknowledges his team is in a tough spot going into Game 4 of the Stanley Cup final.

"You lose back-to-back games, it gets your attention," the coach conceded. "We're in a hole right now. We want to make sure (Wednesday) we prioritize the importance of that game and it's a different level."

Down two games to one, the Hawks face a tall order in trying to bring down the Bruins in their own building.

Boston has won seven straight at home and is 8-2 overall at TD Garden in these playoffs, outscoring the opposition 28-17.

At least the Hawks can take solace from their second-round series against Detroit. They trailed the Red Wings three games to one before reeling off three straight wins.

"I think we're in a tough spot," Quenneville acknowledged. "In the Detroit series we found a way to get ourselves

Numbers favour Bruins

The Bruins are 2-0 when holding a 2-1 series lead in the final. The Blackhawks are 0-3 lifetime when trailing 2-1 in the final.

- "We know they're a good team, tough to play against," said Chicago defenceman Johnny Oduya. "But I think we still feel confident. We know we have to steal a game here and that's what we're looking to do."

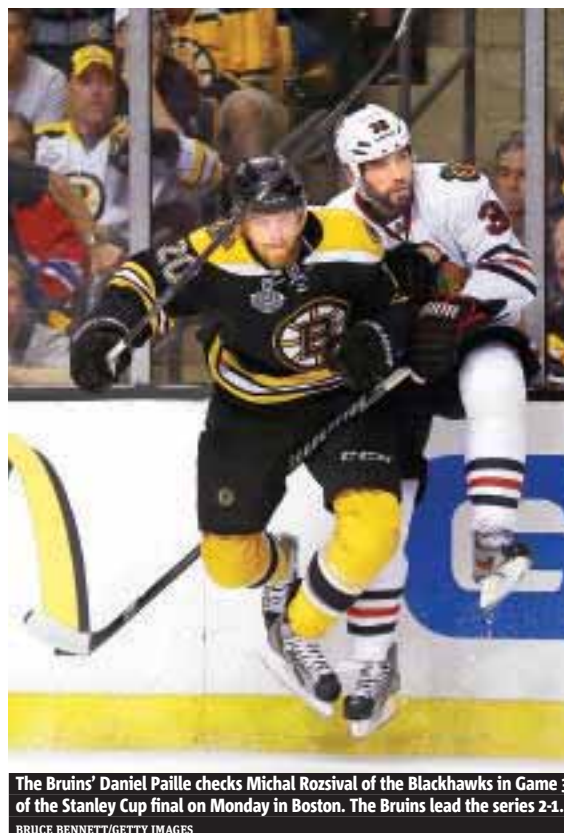

to get back into it. That's what we're looking for. (Wednesday) is a very important game, like we have to win (Wednesday) night. Come up with a good result, we're right where we want to be."

Quenneville said he hoped injured star Marian Hossa (upper body) will be back in the lineup. Chicago's co-scoring leader was a late scratch Monday, replaced by Ben Smith.

The Chicago coach has other concerns.

His team is getting schooled in the faceoff circle, putting the Hawks constantly on the back foot. Boston won 40 of 56 faceoffs Monday with Patrice Bergeron winning 24 of 28 draws.

Chicago's power play, which was ordinary during the season (ranking 19th with a 16.7 per cent success rate), has been even worse in the playoffs.

Chicago was 0-for-5 with a man advantage in Game 3 and has not scored a power-play goal in its last 20 chances dating to Game 2 of the Western Conference final. The Blackhawks have an 11.3 per cent success rate this post-season (7-for-62), and are only 3.7 per cent on the road (1-for-27).

The Hawks are 0-for-11 with a man advantage against Boston this series.

Boston's penalty killing isn't helping matters. The Bruins killed off five power plays Monday night, stretching their successful string to 27 consecutive penalties dating to Game 5 of the Eastern Conference semifinals. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Detroit delivers 3-years to Datsyuk

The Detroit Red Wings accomplished their No. 1 goal of the off-season Tuesday by agreeing to a $22.5 million, three-year deal with Pavel Datsyuk.

"We're obviously thrilled to extend the contract of the best two-way player in the National Hockey League," Red Wings general manager Ken Holland.

Datsyuk and the Red Wings reached the deal two days before his 35th birthday, keeping the Russian superstar with the franchise through the 2016-17 season.

Jays reach Rocky Mountain high with 7th win in a row

MLB. Rogers shuts down former team and is backed by a trio of home runs

Edwin Encarnacion had a home run and three RBIs to back pitcher Esmil Rogers' strong outing against his former club and the Toronto Blue Jays won their seventh straight with a 8-3 interleague victory over the Colorado Rockies on Tuesday night.

The Jays (34-36) are rolling right now, having won 11 of their last 14 games since June 2 and outscoring their opponents 73-38 in that span.

Maicer Izturis and catcher J.P. Arencibia also went deep for Toronto, which hasn't won seven straight since Aug. 30 to Sept. 9, 2008.

Esmil Rogers recorded the win on Tuesday as the Jays beat the Rockies 8-3. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Rogers (3-2) pitched 6 2/3 innings while giving up three runs — two earned — and four hits in his fourth start of the year and first against his former team. He played parts of four seasons with the Rockies before being traded last year to Cleveland for cash considerations.

The 22,852 at Rogers Centre gave a standing ovation to the 27-year-old Dominican as he exited the field with a smile on his face.

Canadian Jeff Francis, making his fourth career start against Toronto, had an unwelcome homecoming. The Colorado left-hander (2-5) and North Delta, B.C., native was roughed up for 10 hits and eight runs, including all three homers, over six innings.

It was his first loss against the Jays in four tries, and second trip to Toronto, his last coming on Aug. 25, 2011, a 9-6 win when he was with the Kansas City Royals.

As expected, fuel economy for the base IS 250 should remain virtually constant at 9.5 l/100 km in the city and 6.5 on the highway and 10.5/7.3 for the IS 350 (all take premium fuel).

Engine

If you're familiar with the previous IS drivetrains, you can skip the next sentence. The IS 250 keeps its 2.5-litre V6 with 204 horsepower and 185 pound-feet of torque, while the IS 350 continues with 306 horsepower and 277 pound-feet of torque emanating from a 3.5-litre V6. Both are carry overs.

Review. OK, no more Mr. Nice Guy; Toyota's luxury brand is here to take down the big guns

wheelbasemedia.com

The 2014 IS remains the class rebel of the Lexus fleet, which is great news for those who derive their driving kicks from compact luxury cars that are fleet of foot, strong of character and provide power to either the rear or all four wheels.

The main reason for the IS's existence is to bait BMW 3-series, Audi A4 and Mercedes-Benz C-Class fans into switching teams. Toyota's premium division has learned plenty from its previous two IS generations and now appears to be an even stronger contender with the new-for-2014 version.

The IS, with its 20 per cent stiffer platform, has grown nearly nine centimetres in length, with seven more centimetres between the front and rear wheels, while width and height increase only slightly. Rear-seat riders now benefit with a bit more leg and hip room, which was a drawback on the previous IS.

All passengers will appreciate the more modern-looking cabin that is neatly trimmed out with more centralized controls, touch-sensitive switches and a console-mounted cursor-type knob for selecting various infotainment choices.

Of particular note is that the back seat is now a 60:40 split-folding affair (doesn't nearly every car already offer this feature?), which increases the car's stowage capacity. The rear and all-wheel-drive IS 250 and all-wheel-drive 350 employ six-speed automatic transmissions. An eight-speed automatic is standard when the rear-wheel-drive IS 350 is selected. All-wheel-drive, which is a $3,800 option, splits the torque 50:50 (front/rear) in normal driving situations, but will transfer up to 70 per cent to the rear when wheel slippage is detected.

The IS has Drive Mode Select throttle and transmission programming, with ECO, NORMAL and SPORT S modes for rear-wheel-drive models, plus a SNOW mode for AWD-equipped cars. Additionally, the returning F SPORT package that's optional on all IS 250 and 350 cars also has a SPORT S+ setting that firms up the suspension for more aggressive driving.

With an estimated starting price of about $38,000 for the 250 and $48,000 for the 350, including destination charges, the Lexus duo offers an array of standard equipment, but most buyers will likely opt for one or more of the option groups that upgrade the car to full-on luxury status. They include, among others, a navigation system with backup camera, premium Mark Levinson-brand audio package, heated and cooled seats and a wood-trimmed interior.

Make no mistake, the 2014 IS is now more of a match for the competition. It also strengthens Lexus's position as a purveyor of vehicles with plenty of passion along with prestige.

Every boss is an icon and idiot

Autopilot. Automotive success Bob Lutz tells us to take the good with the bad boss-wise and always learn from your time under them

PILOT
Mike Goetz
drive@metronews.ca

Over his illustrious five-decade career in the auto biz, successful automotive executive Bob Lutz has worked with a lot of famous bosses. From that vantage point he noticed that most of the really successful ones were also "mentally and emotionally askew."

In his new book, Icons and Idiots, Lutz profiles nine such bosses (and one teacher and one Marine drill sergeant), all of which have taught him major lessons in leadership. The title doesn't mean that some are idiots and some are icons. Rather that every strong leader is a bit of both.

"There's a good side, which gets the job done," says Lutz. "There's often a downside that makes them hard to understand or difficult to work for. It's precisely because they are impatient, stubborn, opinionated, unsatisfied and domineering that they are successful."

His advice to those of us currently dealing with such unbalanced bosses is to learn to take the good with the bad. Here are a few examples of what Lutz has learned:

From sadistic Marine Corps Staff Sgt. Donald Giusto:

"Learning to continue to function in the face of failure, betrayal, acute disappointment, all the while physically and mentally tired, perhaps without food, is what the Marine Corps expects from its members. What it demonstrated to me is that we are all capable when the chips are down, of doing far more than we think we can. Sgt. Giusto unlocked the hidden reservoirs of capability in all of us."

From Harold A. "Red" Poling, ultimate bean counter, and not a nice guy:

"Red taught me that the tough uncompromising, unfeeling, almost nasty approach to initial cost and investment estimates could produce meaningful saving... The Poling approach served me well during my later tenure at Chrysler and my last tour at GM, although I was always at pains to leaven it just a bit with humour, engineering and marketing judgment." Lutz also noted to never forget that you can still learn stuff from bosses you can't stand.

From Ralph Mason, a cheerful but serious alcoholic, and product of a bygone era, when there was a lot of hard drinking in the auto industry:

"Ralph nevertheless focused on what was important and advanced the cause of GM and its shareholders." Lutz also said Mason often went home early to get plastered, but had a good team behind him, trusted them and didn't interfere.

From Rick Wagoner, the #### capable GM president that couldn't turn GM around:

"A magnificent human being, Rick was simply too nice, too introspective and too thoughtful in many of his actions to see the company through the turbulence of 2008-09... Tolerant of mediocrity, ... it was painful to see Rick protect and support many officers who, to my eyes, personified the large corporate culture of 'look good, sound good, prepare well for meetings, and never disagree with the boss.'" But Lutz considers Wagoner the perfect "peacetime" CEO, and says Wagoner's moves to buy Daewoo and go aggressively into China are cornerstones of GM's current success.

Make it sing with comfort: Tune your suspension just like a guitar

Driving force. Kia's engineers know it's a lengthy process to make sure their vehicles' suspension is just right

drive@metronews.ca

Vehicles have specific "rides," depending on what they are: a family sedan will ride smoother than a sports car's harsher suspension, for example, but its steering won't be as firm.

These characteristics are achieved through a procedure called suspension tuning. "The rubber bushings, shocks, springs, stabilizer bars and tires can all be tuned to reach a specific target," says Vu Banh, ride and handling senior engineer at the Hyundai-Kia America Technical Center in California. "Depending on what's desired, if it's ride comfort or sporty handling, you can adjust these parts to reach that goal."

It takes about a year to do the job, which begins when engineers receive the first prototype of a new model. "We start tuning and get a rough setting for that one," Banh says. "Then we get another vehicle that's closer to the production car, and we'll put those (prototype) settings in, fix any issues, make more adjustments and continue refining as much as we can."

Computers are used extensively in vehicle design, but they're not as useful in suspension tuning, because they can't accurately simulate rubber. Tuning is a painstaking process of making adjustments and then driving the car to see how it feels, over and over again.

How it's done depends on the part. Shock absorbers contain hydraulic oil, and if internal valves are adjusted to different oil flow, the shocks become firmer or softer. Engineers can use soft or hard rubber bushings, or different types of springs to achieve various results. Even the tires become part of the process.

Engineers worked for a year to tune the Kia Rondo's suspension. JIL MCINTOSH

"If we come up with a new shock setting, for instance, we'll possibly (use) a new tire," Banh says. "Then we'll work around that, going back and forth with the shock tuning until it meets the target."

Many new cars now have electric power steering, which uses a motor in the steering column. Unlike hydraulic systems, which use pumps to regulate fluid flow, the motor can be tuned electronically. Engineers dial in the steering for more assist at lower speeds, such as when manoeuvring in parking lots, and less at higher speeds for easier control on the highway. They also aim for good "on-centre feel," where the car stays straight without the need for constant steering wheel correction.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

Create something wonderful today. This can be one of the most productive times of the year for you, so get serious and get busy working on something that makes your world, and the world at large, a better place.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Whatever problems you may have with a relationship, you won't work it out by trying to force the other person to conform to your way of thinking. Try seeing things from their point of view.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

The Sun's link to Jupiter in your sign today will help you to express yourself freely. It will also help you to get over some kind of falling out you had with a loved one.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

Focus on the realities of your everyday situation and avoid any and all forms of wishful thinking. Above all, don't let others' negativity blind you. Life is a garden of delights but too few people see it that way.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

You will come out on top today, especially if you focus on things you are good at, things you really enjoy. You will enjoy them more if some people say you should not be doing them.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Moderation is a must today, especially if you are one of those Virgos who tends to get carried away when they find something they really enjoy.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

The Sun close to Jupiter in one of the best areas of your chart means you will have a thoroughly good day. Do a bit of travelling, even if it's only to the corner store and back.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Your taste for the good things in life could lead to you spend too much today but in the greater scheme of things, it's no big deal. Retail therapy could in fact be just what you need to cheer you up.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

Jupiter, your ruler, links with the Sun in the partnership area of your chart today, making it easier for you to compromise with people you don't always see eye-to-eye with. Don't compromise too much though.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Don't limit the goods deeds you do to people you know. Help those you encounter in daily life too, even if they are total strangers. Your generosity will have a knock-on affect that touches so many lives.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

Life is good and getting better by the hour, the day, the minute. Creatively and romantically you are in such a positive mood that you attract people and situations that bring thrills aplenty. Lucky you.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

At home and work, people will want to do things for you today, and if you are smart you will let them. You'll feel good about it, they'll feel good about it. SALLY BROMPTON
